Weaver charged in Acker murder

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil reported the arrest Monday of Robert Weaver Jr. for the murder of 38-year-old Bay Catholic Elementary teacher Lucinda L. Acker.

Weaver, 39, was a member of the St. Rose choir and friend to both Acker and her husband, choir leader Alfriza Acker.

He is charged with capital murder, robbery and arson and remains in the Hancock County Justice Facility without bond.

According to McNeil, the Bay St. Louis Police were first notified of a fire at the Beyer Street residence at 6:03 p.m. Sunday.

Upon arrival, officers discovered Acker's body in the living room of the smoke-filled house. McNeil said, "There had been a fire, but based on information furnished by state fire marshal David Dry, I feel the fire did not burn extensively due to lack of oxygen."

The fire was a result of what McNeil described as an attempt to cover up another crime.

McNeil said the primary cause of death was strangulation, and the approximate time of death was between the hours of 8-10 p.m. Saturday.

He added, "Charges of sexual assault are indicated, but we are waiting on the final report from the coroner's office at this time."

Weaver was arrested Monday afternoon, McNeil commented.

Acker's husband was in Texas with a church choir until early Monday.

"Weaver accompanied the victim's husband to the station at 9 a.m. Monday. Later in the day, he was formally charged.

"Some evidence was discovered earlier that led to the arrest."

McNeil declined to comment on evidence, stating concerns

Community mourns loss

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Although a suspect is behind bars at the Hancock County Justice Facility, the community of Bay St. Louis remains stunned as it struggles to mourn the loss of Lucinda L. Acker.

A reconciliation and comfort service was held last night at Valena C. Jones United Methodist Church. Saturday, St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church will celebrate a funeral mass at 11 a.m. with burial to follow in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Administrators and teachers at Bay Catholic Elementary School, where Acker taught for 16 years, met Wednesday morning and decided to establish the Lucinda Lizana Acker Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Those who knew Cindy, as she was called, describe her with respect, admiration and love.

"She was a person who hardly spoke in a loud voice," Bay Catholic principal Ann Allen stated. "She was always calm in the midst of activity."

"She was a true person, as there was no other side to her. What she said was what she did."

Allen said, "Cindy was a true example of what the term 'witness to one's faith' means. The things that people talk about, she put into practice."

"As an educator of young children, that was a wonderful

Bay City Council okays sewer line extension plan

BY TRACI BONNEY

If all goes according to schedule, the City of Bay St. Louis could begin sewer line extensions in mid- or late October.

Tuesday night, the City Council authorized Mayor Eddie Favre to advertise for construction contract bids for the multi-phase project. Estimated total cost is almost $1.7 million.

The first phase will tie the Bay Cove area of Cedar Point into the existing city system and pave the way for the second phase. The second phase, broken into two parts, will extend the lines into the newly annexed Cedar Point area, then extend lines into the "Central City" area.

The third phase is optional and will be constructed only if all the anticipated development along North Beach Blvd., including Bay Cove and Raintree Casino, actually occurs. This phase will upgrade the system to accommodate the additional demand from the two sites and any resulting development.

Favre said the money for the project has been budgeted under utilities and is in the city's reserves. He added that some of the line extensions may be done by the city, while the major work will be contracted.

The work on the first phase is expected to take about two months to finish after the contract is awarded, he said.

HMC plans to open clinic at Diamondhead

BY TRACI BONNEY

Diamondhead residents may find themselves with expanded local medical care options in the near future.

Hancock Medical Center plans to use some of the savings from a recent bond refinancing to build a clinic in Diamondhead, on Gex Drive next to Woodland Village nursing home. Administrator Don Henderson said the hospital has found a family doctor willing to relocate to the community, provided the clinic is built.

Henderson told the board of supervisors Monday the doctor will rent some of the clinic space from the hospital, while the rest of the space will be available for specialists to use for consulting work in the community.

to approve the hospital's execution of an option to purchase 1.75 acres from Purcell Inc. for $250,000. He said it is a six-month option, which will allow time to iron out the clinic's details.

Dolph Kellar moved the supervisors take it under advisement so board attorney Gerald Gex could study the option document, but withdrew his motion after it was pointed out that executing the option did not obligate the hospital to any commitment at this point.

However, Kellar did abstain when the motion was voted to allow the execution of the option. The motion passed with four in favor and one abstention.

RAILROAD LOAN

"The citizens that I've talked to are very interested in us coming up there and starting something."

Rev. Charles Johnson

He pointed out that since Diamondhead is in the middle of the county, the clinic will also serve people in the northern part of Hancock County.

Rev. Charles Johnson, chairman of the hospital board, told the supervisors, "The citizens that I've talked to are very interested in us coming up there and starting something."

He added that the clinic will help HMC compete with other regional hospitals for local business.

"We need to do this for our own survival," he stated.

Henderson asked the board

The board of supervisors voted 5-0 to apply for a $100,000 non-interest-bearing loan from Coast Electric, which will be used to construct railroad lines at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Although a public hearing was required, no one objected to the board's plan to obtain the loan, which is payable by the Port and Harbor Commission over a five-year period.

The commission plans to build a 1,800-foot rail spur line to accommodate 18 to 20 additional railroad cars.

Unemployment rate rises in county

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Hancock County's unemployment rate rose to 9.1% in June, while the state average climbed to 10.7%.

The national average for the same time period is 7.8%.

The statistics are compiled monthly by the Mississippi Employment Security Commission. The rate is up from 7.2% of May, 1992, and 7.4% of June the previous year.

Current figures list a growth in the civilian labor force to 14,150, with approximately 1,290 unemployed. In June of 1991, MESC listed a labor force of 14,050, with 1,040 unemployed.

Unemployment rates for surrounding counties are: Harrison, 9.6%; Pearl River, 14.1%; and Stone, 15.7%.

NO DUMPING BY ORDER OF B.S.L. POLICE DEPT. COUNTY OF HANCOCK

This is not a dump!

Goodwill manager Avis Morreale points to a sign located in the rear of the Bay St. Louis Goodwill Store. She also points to a pile of broken furniture and discarded items which greeted her Monday morning. "All of this was left over the weekend while the store was closed," she stated. "There are people who just dump items and then there are people who come and rummage through bags of clothing left, scattering them and ruining what might have been able to be used." Morreale said Bay St. Louis Police have informed her that anyone seen illegally dumping or rummaging through donations for Goodwill could be fined up to $500. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

"I am very confident that we have the right suspect," he added. "There are no other suspects."

McNeil said the motive for the murder is still undetermined at this time. "It may be several things, robbery, sex...The investigation is still continuing."

Weaver, of 500 St. John St., Bay St. Louis, will have a preliminary hearing in about a week, McNeil said. "He will be brought before the grand jury for determination if the case will go to trial, and if it does, he will be tried in circuit court."

Weaver was represented by court appointed attorney James G. Tucker III Monday when he appeared before City Judge George Lipscomb. The Rev. Ken Hamilton of St.

Rose de Lima Church has been reported to say, "Weaver has a serious drug problem."

According to court records, Weaver pleaded guilty to felony charges in 1982 of aggravated assault after stabbing Mary Fairconneture Weaver five times with a kitchen knife following an argument on February 28, 1982.

Weaver admitted in court to use of Valium and barbiturates at the time of the crime. He also reported receiving drug treatment from the Veterans Administration.

Weaver received a seven-year prison sentence and was ordered to participate in a drug rehabilitation program at the state penitentiary at Parchman.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said Weaver was released on January 13, 1984.

Weaver was employed as a maintenance worker at St. Stanislaus and was appointed to a five-year term on the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission in December 1990 by Mayor Edward Favre. Spokesman Mike Cuevas reported he had not attended meetings in six months.

lesson. When called upon to do something, even if it meant she had to be in the limelight, she would do it and do it well.

"She was asked by the Archdiocese to represent the Black Congress when the Holy Father visited. She was very moved and humbled by the honor."

"She was a quiet and reserved person. She had such strength in faith, and devotion to family, church, work and influencing children on a daily basis — then to be taken..."

"If you were to look for an image and model of a saint, you might have found one in her."

Attorney Joseph "Jody" Gex commented on her and his wife's appreciation for Acker as teacher of two of their sons, saying, "We couldn't believe this happened to her. She gave her all to her students."

"She was a very capable teacher, and I feel my children got a lot out of her classes as individuals. She helped to head them in the right direction, to build character."

"My 17-year-old son was affected by the news of her death. He told me he could not imagine Cindy provoking anyone to the point of doing such a thing to her."

"This was a nice person," Laurie Turfitt, a childhood friend of Acker's who recently relocated to the area, described how during last school year Acker would call her at home to report on her son's adjustment to his new environment.

"She went beyond the classroom," Turfitt stated. "She was kind and compassionate. She was genuinely concerned for each student."

Diane Ferrell, a fellow teacher, said the memorial fund would financially assist black children wishing to attend Bay Catholic.

"We felt we needed to do something, to reach out in some way."

"Because Cindy was Catholic and an educator, and because she gave so much of her life to education, we felt it was a logical step to enable black students to benefit from such a fund."

"We felt this was so appropriate, as a perpetual memorial. Her witness and example will be kept alive, so to speak."

na, said his parents were taking their daughter's death hard.

Acker's mother, Edith Lizana, and sister, Linda Moss of Madison, Wisc., found Acker's body at her Beyer Street home Sunday.

Lizana said Acker had not attended church Sunday morning and his family had been telephoning his sister's home all day with no response.

Moss had arrived in town Saturday and visited her sister with their mother Saturday night at the Acker home.

Lizana said, "What eases my anger is knowing because of the type of individual she was, there is no doubt in my mind where she now is."

Acker was a member of St. Rose de Lima Church, where she actively participated in the choir and worked in ministering to the home bound.

Her husband, Alfiza Acker, is director of the St. Rose Choir, a musician and an employee of the Hancock County Food Stamp Program.

Weaver was also a member of the St. Rose Choir.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The community is still rocking because of the violent death of Lucinda Lizana Acker this past weekend. At Bay Catholic Elementary School in Bay St. Louis, Acker was a dedicated teacher and role model for so many of our youth.

Over the years she received offers from other schools, paying higher salaries, yet, she would not consider them, as she was dedicated to the youth of the Bay-Waveland area at Bay Catholic School.

A loyal and faithful member of St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church, Acker will be missed by so many of her friends in the community, and only God knows really how many, for just 'being herself.'

I have known the family for many years, and as a matter of fact, her brother, Steve Lizana, was a pressman at The Echo for several years and sister, Cathy Farve, worked in The Echo's composing room some 10 or so years ago.

To Lucinda's mother, father, brother, sisters, husband, nieces, nephews and other family members, she must be in God's hands. She will be sadly missed by so many of us.

Have you ever tried doing something different from the way you have been doing it for over 28 years?

Well my street (Genin Street) is now one of the few one-way thoroughfares in Bay St. Louis.

It takes a little getting used to, traveling only one direction home, when I have been coming from both directions for so many years.

I am glad to see our city fathers make the street one-way, because Genin Street is so narrow. Several months ago, a petition signed by the residents was presented to the Bay Council requesting the street be designated one-way.

I am hoping everyone will observe the one-way status of the street now.

A big, big reunion celebration is being planned for Sept. 18-20 at Diamondhead for persons who attended Bay High School between 1920 and 1988.

This covers a lot of former students and there should be a large turnout and a fun-filled three days.

Among those getting the event together and their telephone numbers are, Hubert Coward, 896-0803; Jim Evans, 467-9861; Donald Ray, 467-3858; Jimmy Loicano, 467-4601; Clarence Piazza, 467-4822; Claudia Murphy, 467-1991; and Lex Haynes, 467-7099; also Beverly Davis Potts and Bertha Irene Koch Morris.

You can call one of the above for further information and reservations.

Events are to take place at the Diamondhead County Club and Yacht Club.

Events are to include a Get Reacquainted Party, Big Band sounds of Glen Miller, Count Basie and other popular music of the 30's, 40's, and 50's, a Rock and Roll band, and a Farewell Brunch and a lot in between.

I am sure many of the former students of Bay High School, would like to see a sellout for this special reunion.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

House passes major consumer legislation

On July 23, the U.S. House of Representatives passed sweeping legislation aimed at lowering cable television rates.

The "Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992," overwhelmingly passed the House, 340-73. I strongly supported the bill, sponsored by Telecommunications and Finance Subcommittee Chairman Edward J. Markey, because it is expected to lower cable television rates, improve customer services and significantly boost competition.

From Forrest to Jackson County, dozens of South Mississippians have written me and stopped me on the street to task that Congress step in to regulate an industry whose customer rates have far outpaced inflation. In July, the House answered their requests.

The bill would regulate the cable television industry by requiring cable operators to establish a basic level of service, require the Federal Communications Commission to regulate such basic services and to act against cable operators who charge unreasonable rates.

The average price for basic cable service is around $17 a month and continues to climb. However, bill sponsors say rates average 34 percent lower in communities where cable faces competition. If the FCC uses those figures as a guidepost, the bill could bring average basic rates down to around $11 dollars a month.

The bill would also assist Mississippi's satellite dish owners. Presently, the cable industry charges as much as 500 percent more than cable operators pay for the same programs. Under an amendment added to the bill by Congressman "Billy" Tauzin of Louisiana, cable program vendors would be forced to sell their shows at fair prices to competitors such as the backyard satellite dish industry.

The bill has been sent to conference where it is expected to receive few changes, after which, it will be sent to the president for his signature. The Administration has threatened to veto any legislation regulating the cable industry.

But, considering the strong bipartisan support in both the House and the Senate, I am hopeful Congress would override a Presidential veto and give the FCC and local authorities the chance to keep rates reasonable and to set consumer service standards for cable operators.

The snakes are crawling

An old legislator's tale had it that the "snakes began to crawl" in the back room and the cloakrooms in the last hours of a legislative session.

That's when the taxpayers had to hold on to their wallets and their purses.

Here's a message for taxpayers in 1992: "The snakes are crawling."

Hold on. Better advice: Be prepared.

The issue popping up again is the worn-out question of the operations of county road systems.

Voters in forty-six counties told their county supervisors in the 1989 elections to forget the beat system, forget five road systems per county, forget five road crews and five sets of expensive equipment.

Voters in those 46 counties chose the proven savings and efficiencies of the unit system of county road operations—a single system—over the traditional, but wasteful, beat system.

The 1989 law provided that once the elections on county unit were over, they were over for five years. The unit system would be given time to prove its worth.

Then, in a reversal, the 1992 Legislature changes the rules. Legislators agreed to elections on county unit this year.

The law now provides that 15 percent of the voters in a county, or 1,500 voters—whichever is less—may petition for a county unit election this fall.

Deadline for the filing of petitions is Sept. 4.

The word is out. Some county supervisors want the unit system to fail. Some still want to work as road foremen, ignoring the various other duties of the office. Some still want to purchase equipment, control the jobs, just divide the money five ways, regardless of countywide priorities.

Those who do are quietly making the rounds, quietly circulating petitions, gearing up for November elections.

Voters beware: The "snakes are crawling".... or riding county roads in county-owned pickup trucks.

You will want to watch for the "snakes" in your county.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Clinton/Gore ticket cutting state Bush support

Just a few short weeks back, Republican presidential strategists had Mississippi colored in on the nationwide map as an absolutely safe state for George Bush. Not anymore.

Even Bush leaders in the state concede that the comfortable lead their man had over Democrat Bill Clinton has slimmed down substantially since the Democratic National Convention and Tennessee Sen. Al Gore came on the ticket.

"When I took this job, we were at 80 percent, and I thought we could take it easy. Now this is quite a bit different," said Clarke Reed, the silver-gray haired veteran work horse of the Mississippi Republican Party, who is state chairman of the Bush campaign.

Still Reed prefers to believe that Mississippi is "Bush Country," as he looks back at the 63 percent margin by which the president carried this state in 1988.

"I feel like if we don't do well in Mississippi, we're in big trouble nationally," Reed says.

That is the same conclusion expressed by a writer from the New York Times who came through the state a week or so ago after making a swing through a number of states making soundings of voter sentiment on the presidential race. "If Bush loses Mississippi, I believe he's going to lose the election," she told me.

In Mississippi she said one striking thing she found was a fervor and demonstrative Bush support among evangelical religious groups unlike any place else she went. But their relatively small numerical strength in Mississippi doesn't make them a major factor in the election outcome.

Reed concedes that Republicans have not even had to break a sweat to win the last two presidential elections in Mississippi, but they know they're in for a serious contest against the Clinton-Gore ticket. "Everybody agrees it is going to be close," he said.

Jimmy Carter, the last Democrat to carry Mississippi, in 1976, won the state over then incumbent President Gerald Ford by just 1.2 percent. But Reed believes that Carter's strong identity with Southern Baptists who are numerous in Mississippi was a selling point in this state Clinton won't have.

The GOP campaign strategy this time in Mississippi is going to concentrate on getting out a heavy vote. When Ronald Reagan carried the state handily in 1984 there was in a record turnout—952,000 votes. Bush won in 1988 in the second highest turnout.

Also figuring prominently in the Bush campaign will be the utilization of Mississippi's two Republican United States Senators, Thad Cochran and Trent Lott. It will also hope to get some mileage out of the party's first Mississippi governor, Kirk Fordice, in more than a century.

However, because Fordice's popularity in the state now is highly suspect, the Bush campaign may decide to use him mostly elsewhere, and trot out GOP Lt. Gov. Eddie Briggs more stateside.

For surprises, the Mississippi Republicans are unveiling one by naming Charles Evers, the black civil rights legend and former high-ranking Mississippi Democrat, now turned Republican, as the state party member on the platform committee at the National Republican Convention.

Since it was de rigueur for an assignment to the GOP platform committee to be "pro-life" on the abortion question, Evers was asked if he was. His answer was that he had fathered seven children by five different women, and that "none of them is on welfare."

Meantime, the state's Democrats, still obviously on a high from the remarkable pairing of two Southern moderates at the head of the party's ticket, were wasting no time getting the campaign on track. Lisa Walker, the state party director for the past three years, moved into the job of campaign manager.

Already, reports say that Democratic legislative candidates out of the stump are finding tremendous interest in Clinton and Gore from voters. Northeast Mississippi, once the strongest Democratic area in the state which defected to Reagan and Bush, is showing strong signs of swinging back because of the Clinton-Gore ticket.

Indicative of that was a highly successful outdoor Democratic rally last week at Tupelo hosted by House Speaker Tim Ford, who had been a lukewarm Democratic player the past few years.

And in the coastal 5th Congressional District, which had become something of Republican stronghold the past 20 years, Democrats say they have put together a highly effective party organization for the ticket.

He said the work will be done under traffic, and motorists will encounter lane closures.

The commissioner asks motorists to observe all construction advisory signs while driving through the project.

WASTEWATER

Emile Buccola and Bill Haggerty presented a request that the board of Hancock County Wastewater District #1 be allowed to levy a four-mill tax on the district's residents.

Buccola said the millage, under law, can be used for support, operations, retirement of bonds or any combination of those measures.

He told the supervisors the district needs about $38,000 to implement its own maintenance operations independent of the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District, which currently handles the Hancock County district's maintenance. The four mills is expected to bring in about $40,000, he said.

Buccola said one of the district's main problems right now is collecting payments for service from customers.

"The wastewater district includes residents in supervisor Districts 4 and 5. However, some of those residents do not yet receive sewer service from the district.

District 4 supervisor Wilmer Seymour told Buccola, "If my people won't receive the sewage service, I won't put the millage on them." Kellar agreed with Seymour and said he also would not vote for the millage levy.

Buccola said the residents not currently receiving service will eventually, if the district can raise the money needed for studies, line extensions, personnel and equipment.

Haggerty said the residents of the Jourdan River area also already benefit in another way, whether they receive sewage service or not: the wastewater district has greatly reduced the amount of sewage flowing into the river and bayous and polluting the local waters.

Although the supervisors did not act on the millage request, they did pass a resolution Buccola requested, which will be sent to the local electric companies. The resolution will request that the companies not provide power to anyone in the wastewater district until after the district has approved the sewer connections or septic tank.

Buccola said the resolution should help reduce the number of people who move onto a piece of property and begin living there without taking care of their sewage disposal. He explained that many people are unwilling to pay for the sewage service.

FATALITY

A Bay St. Louis man died Saturday night in a collision with another vehicle on Hwy. 603, according to Highway Patrol spokesman Sgt. Dan Tackett.

Tackett said Tab W. Gavney, 31, was killed around 11:58 p.m. two miles south of Kiln when his car crossed the center line and hit an oncoming car.

His passenger, Ronal McColey, 29, was taken to Hancock Medical Center with chest injuries. Karen J. Cuevas, 21, of Pass Christian, was driving the other vehicle. She sustained head injuries and also was transported to HMC. A hospital spokesperson said both McColey and Cuevas were in stable condition Tuesday.

Tackett said an alcohol test was administered to Gavney's body, but the results will not be available for about two weeks.

BURGLARY

Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Nathan Hoda reported that two Pearllington men were arrested Monday in connection with a burglary of a Methodist church in Pearllington.

Hoda said Robert Marais, 29, and Reggie Forrest, 24, were arrested and charged with burglary of a church. An air conditioner was reported stolen; it was recovered in the woods near the church.

The burglary apparently occurred the night of August 2 and was reported the next day, Hoda said.

Deputy Terry Roberson assisted Hoda in the arrest. The suspects were in the Hancock County jail under bonds of $3,000 each at the time of the report.

JUVENILES ARRESTED

Hoda also reported that two Bayside Park juveniles, one 15 and one 16 years old, were apprehended and charged in connection to a small rash of burglaries.

He said burglaries include the Bayside Park clubhouse June 20 and July 22; a trailer July 13; and a shed July 18. Evidence recovered so far include cigarettes and a small television from the clubhouse, and a radio from another site.

The juveniles were apprehended July 28, Hoda said. He commented that he expects at least two more arrests to result. Deputies George Burleson and Lester Owens are assisting in the investigation.

Elderly warned of misleading advertising

Unscrupulous advertisers frequently lure older people into paying a fee for services that are available free of charge.

According to the Mississippi Department of Human Services' Division of Aging and Adult Services, many of these advertisers use the words 'Social Security' to imply that the Social Security Administration (SSA) authorizes their fraudulent schemes.

"These bogus companies will sometimes attempt to charge consumers a fee to obtain Social Security numbers for babies, notify SSA of name changes, or obtain personal earnings and benefit estimate statements," said James Johnson, director of Aging and Adult Services.

"Social Security does not charge for these services. A phone call or trip to the office will take care of consumers' needs absolutely free."

Aging and Adult Services encourages the elderly to be cautious of any person or company wanting personal information sent to an anonymous post office box in order to receive a Social Security number or replacement.

Other schemes known by Aging and Adult Services include:

- Insurance vendors using 'Social Security' as a means of getting people to respond to advertising. When following up, the consumer finds that he or she is being sold insurance.
- Advertisers deliberately misleading the public into thinking a donation or membership fee must be paid to avoid losing Social Security benefits or Medicare coverage.
- "Anyone receiving misleading information about a Social Security service from a private organization should send the entire package to the Social Security Administration," Johnson added.

For more information regarding Social Security programs, call 1-800-772-1213 or write to the Office of Public Affairs, Box 17740, Baltimore MD 21235.

For information on issues relating to the elderly, call Aging and Adult Services in Jackson at 949-2070 or the toll-free Access Line, 1-800-345-6347.

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club picks Junior Lipton team

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay-Waveland Yacht Club plans to follow the three Ms this year at the Junior Lipton Regatta — Merrigan, Murphy and Mestayer.

Last weekend, Charlie Merrigan, Wayne Murphy and Malory Mestayer finished as the top three of five competitors in the local yacht club's qualifier for the Gulf Yachting Association's junior championship. They and their crews will go to Southern Yacht Club in New Orleans August 22-23 to vie for the Junior Lipton Cup.

The five competing crews ran five races Saturday and Sunday in a round-robin format, with each crew running one race in each of the five boats used. Merrigan, with his crew of Kippy Chamberlain and Emily Taylor, finished first with 9½ points.

Murphy, skippering the crew of Sara Smolenski and Scott Renken, captured second with 11½ points.

Third place was up for grabs right up through the last race. Mestayer, skippering Jean Williams and Sarah Taylor, entered Sunday's final race with 13 points, while Gilly Chamberlain, with a crew of Konnie Merrigan and Justin Wadsworth, went into the competition with 13½ points.

Mestayer's crew won to secure third and a place on the club's Junior Lipton team. Their final score was 15 points.

Chamberlain and his crew ended in fourth with 16½ points, while Chad Renken, skippering Mike Benvenuti and James Wadsworth, rounded out the competition with 20 points. Chamberlain and Renken will be the club's alternates at the championship regatta.

The Junior Lipton regatta will consist of three races — two Saturday and one Sunday — with each skipper running one race. The lowest total club score wins.

Since only sailors under the age of 19 are eligible to compete for the Junior Lipton cup, this will be Merrigan and Murphy's last chance to win the regatta for the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club, according to Murphy's mother, Dootsie Murphy.

The regatta is expected to draw competitors from up to 24 clubs, from Little Rock, Ark., to St. Petersburg, Fla.

St. Louis Bay to open for live baiting Aug. 8

The Back Bay of Biloxi will open for live-bait shrimping Friday, Aug. 7 while the West Pascagoula River and St. Louis Bay will open for live baiters Saturday, Aug. 8.

This will allow live-bait shrimpers to trawl north of the CSX Railroad Bridge in the three areas.

In Back Bay, live-bait shrimpers must trawl east of the interstate 110 Bridge. Live-baiters may trawl in Back Bay between sunrise and noon daily.

In St. Louis Bay, live-baiters are restricted from trawling in the tributaries that flow into the bay. Trawling times in St. Louis Bay will be from sunrise to sunset daily. Pascagoula River, live-baiters may trawl only on Friday, Saturday and Sunday between sunrise and sunset.

Scott Gordon, BMR marine biologist, said the bay and river openings apply only to licensed live-bait shrimpers. Other commercial shrimpers must stay a half-mile south of the mainland.

Gordon said the decision to open the three areas came after sample trawls showed that approved criteria for opening the bays had been met. The criteria take into consideration the size of shrimp and the amount of bait shrimp available inside the bays compared with the amount available outside the bays.

The bay and river area may be closed if it is determined that criteria are no longer met. State law and the Bureau of Marine Resources view live-baiting as a service to the recreational fishing and tourism industries, not as wholesale seafood dealerships.

It is illegal for live baiters to sell shrimp in bulk quantities to individuals, companies and restaurants. It is also illegal to buy shrimp in bulk quantities from live baiters.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Quite a few fishermen, at least more than one, but less than 10 million, have asked me, "Turtle, what is the best bait to use when I go fishin'?"

Normally, my answer has been the best bait to use is the one that produces the most fish. But several events have caused me to change my mind as to the best bait to use.

How many times have you been next to other fishermen, been using the same bait they are using, and not been able to catch any fish, even though they are loading the boat with fish?

You know what I am talking about, as I am sure it has happened to everyone at least once. In fact, several new words have been added to the English language as a result of fishermen expressing their displeasure with this phenomena, sometimes with great vituperation. (Look out, that is a $1.50 word!) Perhaps you really don't want to remember those times because it is simply too frustrating.

Get to the point, Turtle. OK, well anyway, I have seen fishermen using live shrimp, fishin' in the same spot, using the same size hook, the same type cork, and fishin' at the same depth. One was catching fish and the other was not. How do you explain such an occurrence?

I have seen the water off of a certain spot produce fish even though several different fishermen are using a whole tackle box of different types of baits. How do you explain such an occurrence? They spit on their bait. Nah.

I am beginning to believe when fish are hungry, and you are in the right spot, they will bite no matter what type of bait you have on the end of your line.

I know the bait dealers will kill me for making a statement like that, but it seems to make sense. How else can you answer all of the questions that I just posed? Certainly not by saying that the secret is to spit on your bait.

So if there is a secret to catching fish, it very well could be in moving around till you find where the fish are biting. Moving around seemed to be the recipe for fishin' this past week.

I got in reports of several boats that helped the gas companies by traveling all over the Louisiana Marsh in search of fish, only to find that the fish were close to home.

Reports from the Louisiana Marsh indicate the fishin' for trout and reds is downright poor in the Louisiana Marsh area. A few flat fish are being caught, but that is about all that is being caught, on any kind of a regular basis, in this area.

Some folks think the poor fishin' is because the shrimp are still way back in the bayous. This means the fish are in close to where the bait is located. Now that makes sense.

The report from LaFrance Fish Camp is really outstanding. Since Marie is in the hospital, Tammy Gibbons gave me the scoop on all of the goings-on this past week.

Tammy really rubbed it in big-time bad on those fishermen who used tank trucks full of gas to run the oceans in search of fish.

Tammy used a six-foot piece of string and one live shrimp to fish in the bayou next to the boat dock under the "Fishin' Tale Oak." She hooked and landed a speck that weighed about two pounds using this most primitive of fishin' rigs.

She reported she received some very unusual looks from the fishermen who had spent the day running around in the sun and the heat. I can't understand why they would give her those unusual looks.

Then you have people like Joe Servat. Joe says it is so hot, that when he wants to go out in his boat he just starts it and runs the motor under a tree in the shade. He claims under the circumstances, this is just as good as going out into the heat.

At the boat launch I interviewed Chris Simmons (age 7) of Lumberton. Chris said he knows he would have caught a whole boat load full of fish, but he spent the morning checking out the backs of his eyelids.

His dad and two friends said they caught a whole bunch of non-keeper trout using green beetles about 18 to 24 inches under a popping cork. They were able to catch enough keepers to have a nice meal.

Half-Moon and Grassy produced 10 to 15 "keeper" trout per person this past week on live shrimp, dead shrimp, and green beetles. The biggest trout were caught on live mullet about four inches long. Herron Bay and Three Oaks are still producing mixed bags of flounder, reds and specks.

The super hot spot for the flat fish is around marker 21 by Pearl River. I have reports of at least one person catching 50 to 60 flat fish between doormat and half door mat size around marker #21 fishing on the Water quality

Contamination during treatment and distribution

The disinfection of water with chlorine during treatment can cause the creation of an unexpected class of contaminants in drinking water. When water containing trace levels of organic compounds which originate either naturally from decaying vegetation or synthetically from the laboratory is disinfected with chlorine, a class of compounds called trihalomethanes (THMs) can form. The most prevalent member of this class is coliform. It is a substance that has been demonstrated to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

There are also contaminants in the distribution system. Water can become contaminated after the treatment process. The distribution system is a maze of pipes which carries water from the treatment plant to the consumer's tap.

Along the way, water can be exposed to a number of different contaminants including bacteria which enters the pipes at cracks or leaks, or from "cross connections" between pipes carrying potable water and pipes carrying waste water.

Contamination can also come from metal such as lead, copper and iron which may dissolve from pipes into the water, as well as from iron and rust particles from old unlined cast iron pipes. You may be asking the question now, "Who is responsible for acceptable drinking water?"

The Environmental Protection Agency is the principle federal agency that oversees the nation's drinking water programs. They set drinking water standards and write regulations, while state agencies are responsible for enforcing drinking water standards and implementing federal regulations.

It is the responsibility of local government, municipal or county, to make sure that all water utilities meet strict health requirements and satisfy all state and local regulations. It is the responsibility of the local government to develop land use planning guidelines such as:

- * zoning programs
- * monitor pollution of surface and groundwater
- * monitor and test drinking water and maintain records.

Another question which people at this point usually ask is, "How much will it cost to guarantee safe drinking water?"

There is no easy answer to this question because of the many variables involved in each situation. The additional cost, however, will be passed on to the consumers through tax increases or higher water bills.

The next question which you should be asking yourself at this point is, "What can I do to improve the drinking water?"

As a concerned consumer, you can use household chemicals responsibly. Don't pour contaminants down the drain, on the lawn or in the garbage. One gallon of motor oil carelessly poured in the ditch can pollute one million gallons of drinking water.

Recycle anything that can be recycled. This includes clothes as well as paper, plastic, glass and aluminum. Recycling at this point is not cost effective. In other words, don't expect to make money on household recyclables. The more we recycle, the less trash will fill our landfills, thus curtailing water pollution.

Encourage your neighbors to participate in these efforts. Enlist support of clubs in which you're a member. Contact your local city and county officials. Tell them you support clean water and ask what you can do to help them in our area.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
-Caire

Gone are the days when spaghetti, along with other varieties of pasta, was always served hot under a thick blanket of seasoned tomato sauce, more often than not a meat sauce; and macaroni usually appeared as a baked-macaroni-and-cheese combination.

These days, pasta has come into its own, with all but countless sorts and shapes and sizes available, in fresh or dried form. Combinations and tastes are limited only by the cook's imagination and shopping list.

These sultry late summer days and evenings call for chilled pasta, to fill many a meal need. If you haven't already discovered the cool taste of a bowl of chilled, well seasoned pasta embellished with a variety of vegetables and seafood or meats and cheeses on a hotter than hot day, you've a treat awaiting you. It's so easy on the cook and kitchen as well; simply cook the pasta quickly, season, and combine with such Southern staples as seafood and garden fresh vegetables — and no hot trek kitchenward just before suppertime. Supper's waiting in the fridge!

With so many shapes and sizes of pasta from which to choose, it's fun to experiment. Chilled pastas make delicious and filling main dishes, as well as side dishes, even as appetizers in smaller portions; and taste deepens with standing, making your pasta salad even more tasty the day after, and the day after that.

The key to perfect pasta is, of course, to cook it quickly, just tender or "al dente" ("to the teeth") and not mushy. And the key to perfect pasta for chilled salads is a quick rinse in cold water. If you're serving the pasta hot, you needn't rinse it, but just drain it; but if it's to be served cold, I place the just-cooked pasta in a colander to drain, then rinse with cold water and drain; otherwise, the pasta has a tendency to stick together.

Some cooks make their pasta salads with a mayonnaise dressing, but I prefer the oil and vinegar dressing, for the marinated taste. At times I plan my pasta salad beforehand, choosing special touches; at other times I make almost a clean sweep of bits and pieces and leftovers from the fridge. I like it both ways. Here's a basic pasta salad, which Joyce Schoenberger makes a marinated spaghetti sort. You may prefer to use the rotini, or twists, in this dish instead.

JOYCE'S MARINATED SPAGHETTI

1 lb. spaghetti
1 8-oz. bottle Italian salad dressing

2 pkgs. Good Seasons Italian salad dressing mix (dry) plus any combination of the following:

Pepperoni slices or strips
Salami slices or strips
Ham chunks or strips
Cooked shrimp
Cheddar cheese, grated or in small cubes or chunks (or Swiss or Monterey Jack or all of them)

Chopped celery, pimiento, green onion as needed

Green olives and black olives, sliced
Canned petit pois as desired
Whatever else your hand encounters as you reach into the fridge

Cook spaghetti, rinse with cold water and drain. In a large mixing or salad bowl, combine and toss spaghetti with salad dressing and dry salad dressing mix, tossing until well coated. Add any combination of the additions, toss and refrigerate. If using long spaghetti, break into manageable pieces before cooking; or you may wish to use the twists instead.

Serve as appetizer or salad — and enjoy!

Preserving can capture fresh flavor of herbs

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Summer is the time for "puttin' up" vegetables from the garden. Pressure canners, canning kettles and blanchers are going full force across the state as gardeners fill jars and freezers with peas, corn, okra, beans and other garden vegetables.

Tomatoes for canning, however, may be in short supply for some gardeners because of the drying is apparently the most popular way of preserving herbs.

Drying works well for thyme, rosemary, winter savory, sage and dill. Herbs like parsley, chives and basil can be dried, but they lose much of their flavor in the process. The best time of day for harvesting herbs for drying is in the morning. The flavor is supposed to be at its peak early in the day.

Remove any foreign matter from the cut herbs by rinsing sauteed a mixture of green and red sweet peppers with yellow and zucchini squash in a little margarine and a couple of different oil blends. Everyone present appreciated the ease with which the vegetables were prepared and the flavors from the different herbs.

Once prepared, the oil blends should be kept frozen. Small portions of the frozen material can be cut from the larger quantity as needed.

Flavored vinegars, another way of preserving herb flavors, are easy to make and give a special tang to salads and meat marinades. I've especially enjoyed using herb-flavored vinegars when making cabbage slaw.

Add about 4 ounces of fresh bruised herbs to 1 quart of cold vinegar in a glass container with a lid. Set the mixture aside for a couple of weeks and then strain the vinegar to remove the herbs. The vinegar can then be bottled. If time is short, the vinegar can be heated to almost boiling and poured over the herbs.

Garden Club board to meet

The executive board of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club will meet Friday, August 7 at 10:30 a.m. at the Garden Center on Leonhard Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

in Mississippi Gardens

heavy infestation of spotted wilt virus this year.

Preserving vegetables from the garden is long, hard, hot work. The kitchen cupboard doors may get sticky from cutting corn, and there may be sugar on the floor from making jelly and pickles, but it's all worth it.

Gardeners with herbs should be preserving them as well for future use. Since most culinary and picking off all the leaves that are yellow, diseased or damaged by insects.

Herbs for drying can be tied in small bunches and placed in a warm, dry, well-ventilated, dark place. Light during the drying process causes some herbs to turn dark and unattractive.

Decorative bunches of dried herbs lend an early American atmosphere to the kitchen, but exposure to air, dust and light doesn't help their quality if you plan to use the herbs for cooking. Keep dried herbs in tightly closed jars or plastic bags to preserve the flavor.

One of the best methods for preserving herbs to keep as much of their fresh flavor as possible was told to me by Madeline Hill, author of the book, "Southern Herb Growing." Madeline makes oil blends by placing 1/2 cup of vegetable oil in a blender container and adding at least 2 cups of packed, fresh herb leaves. The oil and leaves were pureed, placed in a small container, labeled and frozen until needed. Small amounts of the frozen herb-flavored oils were then ready to be used to season vegetables, stews, soups and other cooked foods.

At a demonstration a couple of years ago, Madeline lightly herbs are used in small amounts, just a few plants each of several different herbs in the garden can result in an extra supply that shouldn't be allowed to go to waste.

There are several different ways of preserving herbs for later use. Among these are drying, freezing and flavoring vinegars, oils and oil blends. Since many herbs are available in dried form in grocery stores,

Wilkerson to lead state Am. Legion Auxiliary

Special to the Echo
The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary recently completed their state convention in Jackson. This year the American Legion Auxiliary elected Mrs. John "Lou" Wilkerson of Bay St. Louis as state president.

Wilkerson is a member of Clement R. Bontemps Unit 139 of Bay St. Louis. She is the wife of Fourth Ward Councilman John Wilkerson and the mother of Agnes Dalton of Pearlinton, John Wilkerson and Beth Burleson of Bay St. Louis.

She announced at the convention that her special project this year will be the State Veterans Home in Jackson. It houses veterans from all over the state and is in need of assistance. They need volunteers and comfort items and recreational supplies.

Anyone wishing to assist with this project can contact The American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Mississippi, P.O. Box 1382, Jackson, MS 39215-1382.

Janet Aime, president of Bay St. Louis Unit 139, presented Wilkerson with a "life membership" at her installation. It was given to her by the unit for her many years of dedicated service to the American Legion Auxiliary and her devotion to the veterans and service to community, state and nation.

Wilkerson will be traveling throughout the state fulfilling her duties as president. She began by installing officers in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Standard.

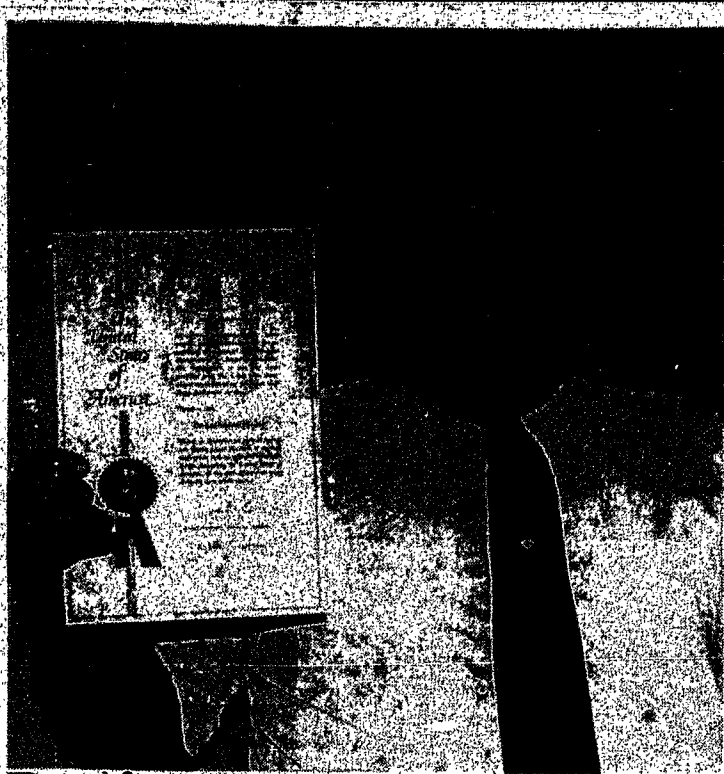

The Auxiliary also elected Mrs. Roy "Janice" Carver as state historian. Carver served as state chaplain last year, and she is a member of Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray Unit 77 Waveland where she served two terms as unit president.

Carver is the wife of Roy Carver and the mother of Mrs. Allyson Walsh of Destrehan, La. Mrs. Ruth Netherland of Metairie, La., and Mrs. Lauren Valenti of Harahan, La. She also has seven grandchildren.

These ladies will serve along with Mrs. Joe "Keet" Peetz of Pascagoula, first vice-president; Mrs. Hershel "Bessie" Ladner of Gulfport, second vice-president; and Mrs. Ed "Rosemary" Marriman of Grenada, chaplain. Their term of office will be until July 1993.

Receives patent

Charles W. Tippit of Bay St. Louis recently received a patent on his design of an entertainment center which resembles a juke box. Tippit, an electronics technician, worked to get the design patented for three years without the aid of an attorney or draftsman. The design, pictured below, appeared in a recent edition of Patent Gazette, which prompted several inquiries from manufacturers. Tippit hopes to produce the cabinet in Mississippi. Casino Magic bustles with 24-hour-a-day activity

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

There isn't a moment to lose these days as Casino Magic waves the wand of dreams and relentlessly builds, buys and hires in preparation for the opening of Bay St. Louis' first licensed gaming facility. The steel skeletons of an entrance building and floating casino fill the background. The tiny figures of men at work are recognized as sparks from welding torches cascade to the ground.

At present, Roy Anderson Construction has 45 workers rotating on three shifts. Project manager Chip Merrigan stated, "We are working 24 hours a day, seven days-a-week in order to obtain the earliest possible opening date for the owner."

Merrigan said aside from sub-contract workers, his company has 45 men employed at the Bay St. Louis site. Of these 45 men, he estimated 34, including himself, are Hancock County residents.

Merrigan added hiring is continuous as one area of construction is completed another begins.

"All steel erections for the casino site, or barge, have been finished," he stated. "The steel structure for the land-based casino entrance should be finished by this week."

"We will be fixing to close in the steel structures next."

According to Merrigan the enclosure of the structures will cause an drastic increase to the payrolls as carpenters, laborers, cement finishers, plumbers, sheet metal workers and pipe fitters are hired.

Merrigan said there was no exact completion date, only the goal of September.

"This is a fast track job," he reported as the phone consistently rang. "Things change daily."

Busy as it was, the Anderson trailer did not compare with the neighboring trailer offices of Casino Magic.

There, the phone calls and walk-ins were running a dead-heat.

An edge of excitement was evident on every face and in every voice as ear to ear smiles greeted those entering.

Director of marketing Jeana Rustand reported marketing efforts by Casino Magic thus far have been well received.

"We have had some great responses," she stated. "People we have contacted are excited over coming to the Coast, and over the total concept of the Bay Cove Resort."

Rustand said her department has been busy finalizing group policy and contacting tour operators and travel agencies from Baton Rouge, La. to Pensacola, Fla. and as far north as Memphis, Tenn.

She commented, "The responses we have been receiving are phenomenal."

Rustand disclosed the Bay Cove Casino Magic payroll to total 50 at present. Of this number, she said 25 employees were hired within the past month.

"Now is the time to apply," Rustand added.

"We are hiring cashiers. Those who change money for chips, and slot cashiers, people who walk around changing money for chips on the casino floor."

"There will be 33 security workers to begin."

"The food and beverage manager arrived on site Monday."

"We will need personnel to operate the kiosks, portable food stands, and there will be 24-hour cocktail service."

"Keno runners remain to be hired also," Rustand said. Keno's a mini-lottery in which people purchased numbers; drawings are held every 10 minutes.

She described 50,000 square feet of flooring between entrance facility and casino, which needs to be kept mobilized around the clock.

Casino Magic estimates its employment to swell to 450 workers by opening day, with more to come.

Once the first phase is completed, Merrigan anticipates construction on the restaurant and nightclub to begin.

The first phase will be completed when the second floor of the casino is opened in November.

Merrigan said Roy Anderson holds the contract for the entrance building and first casino only at this time.

On the wall in the Anderson trailer is a large conceptual map of the completed Bay Cove Resort. It is most impressive with its variety of activities.

Even for the non-gambler, there is enough to keep one occupied day and night.

An 18-hole golf course, water park and running trail to satisfy the athletically inclined; a convention center and 1,500-room hotel to accommodate individual and group visitors; camping grounds for RV travelers; restaurants for the famished; and boutiques for the shoppers.

Casino Magic intends to keep the marina facility active, where many of the slips are presently occupied and visiting boats can dock for a night or longer.

Leaving the office of Pat Kinney, assistant human resources director, was John "Buddy" Mitchel, senior area market manager for Angelica Uniform Group.

Mitchel had been working with Kinney on uniform selections for the various casino workers.

"All I have to say," Mitchel commented, "is Casino Magic is going first class on this. The uniforms they are ordering for their employees are of the best quality, comparable to those worn by the employees of Caesar's Palace and the other top casinos in Las Vegas."

Quality is a number one consideration according to Rustand. "I don't believe people realize just what sort of project is being developed here. The emphasis is for a total resort area, unique to any along the Gulf Coast."

Students of the Casino Magic dealers school

Dealer training classes: A full house

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Located in a far corner of Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center sits a parking lot full of cars.

The lot remains full from morning through evening as the men and women who hope to run the gaming tables of Casino Magic are trained to be dealers.

Andrew Suggett, a native of England and two-year resident of Biloxi, supervises 225 trainees as they work towards being some of the 160 dealers who will open the Bay Cove Resort casino in September.

"Our intent is to provide each person with 240 hours of training," he explained. "The students will keep going until the casino opens. The practice will help to make them better dealers."

Suggett said 160 applicants were accepted, and on the first day of classes, 110 people showed up.

"We have had no problem filling the classes. We are full at this time and there is a waiting list."

According to Suggett, each class of the three classes is limited to 75 persons. He just added three more teachers, bringing the total of instructors to 12.

The students are given written tests once a week. They are instructed in dealing for and playing the games of poker, blackjack or "21"; craps or dice; roulette; pai gow poker; and baccarat.

Suggett estimated 80 percent of the students are Hancock County residents, in addition to a few from Long Beach, Pass Christian and Slidell, La.

The packed room showed participants of various ages. Everyone appeared to be enjoying themselves as they assumed the various roles.

Suggett said dealers work for minimum wage plus tip, adding when a person wins a bet, he will tip the dealer a dollar or two. The industry average for a dealer is $10-15 per hour.

Dispelling the idea that a dealer can manipulate the outcome of a game, he added, there is no way for the dealer to control the arrangement of the cards or dice.

Following completion of the dealer's course Casino Magic will offer positions to those they feel best qualify to fill the opening positions.

The potential dealer must apply to the Mississippi Gaming

Commission for a work permit. He is responsible for paying a $35 processing fee, which covers the commission's investigation including: verification of lack of a criminal record; drug testing; and fingerprint check by the FBI.

Suggett added a position as a dealer could eventually lead to advancement in floor management, noting he began as a dealer 14 years ago. The former casino manager of a Biloxi gaming vessel, he will become Bay Cove casino shift manager in September.

Casino Magic will be hiring another 160 dealers in November when the second floor of the casino is scheduled to open.

Until then, Suggett said, students will continue to be trained as practice makes perfect.

"I understand in Biloxi they taught a class in three weeks," he commented. "I don't see how they can train these people in that time frame."

"I am extremely happy with the enthusiasm from the students," he commented. "Everyone wants to be a dealer."

Bay High seeks mentor volunteers

Bay High School will establish a student mentor program this fall. A mentor program student in a friendly, non-threatening atmosphere. The goal of a mentor relationship is to become involved in a student's life and to provide him/her a positive model to follow.

The students are identified by teachers and school administrators as needing assistance. They may come from broken or over-burdened homes. This program is not meant as a parent substitution or condemnation, but rather a means of helping meet students' overlooked needs," said program coordinator Melissa Johnson.

"The primary goal of our school system is to keep students in school. In our nation 4,000 students a day drop out of school. If students drop out, we fail them. They then become the community's responsibility.

"There is no federal program or law that can change our drop-out rate. Only caring individuals who dare to serve their community and schools can determine the future of these students," she said.

Mentors are there to teach self-discipline and encourage motivation in one's education.

"Students need someone to become interested in their education and to give them respect. This program can also offer a mentor the warm satisfaction of knowing he/she had a positive influence on someone's life. This happens one person at a time. It is amazing what an individual can do."

Those interested in becoming mentor volunteers at Bay High School or seeking more information may contact Melissa Johnson at 467-5297 (guidance department at Bay High School).
